

Contents

|  |    |
|--|----|
| 1. Introduction: Welfare State Capitalism, Universalism, and Social Reproduction in Scandinavia . . . . . | 9  |
| Halvard Vike, Anette Fagertun, and Heidi Haukelien  |    |
| Introduction . . . . .   | 9  |
| The political economy of care . . . . .  | 11 |
| The neoliberal turn: Financial capitalism, flexibilization, and claims for recognition . . . . .                 | 14 |
| Key trends in comparative welfare state and social policy research . . . . .                                     | 17 |
| The institutional welfare landscape, the social contract, and the capitalist social order . . . . .              | 21 |
| Recognizing, (re)framing, and (re)imagining care . . . . .   | 28 |
| Policy, politics, and the political: Imagining and constructing objects and futures . . . . .                    | 33 |
| Acknowledgments . . . . .  | 35 |
| References . . . . .   | 35 |
| Part I The institutional welfare landscape, the social contract, and the capitalist social order      |    |
| 2. The Politics of Solidarity: Explaining Real Universalism . . . . .                                     | 43 |
| Halvard Vike  |    |
| Introduction . . . . .   | 43 |
| Universalism in the tension between morality and instrumentality . . . . .                                       | 45 |
| The struggle(s) for universalism in long-term care . . . . .   | 47 |
| The political economy of care universalism and its feminist roots . . . . .                                      | 53 |
| State capacity and practical feminism in historical perspective . . . . .  | 56 |
| Street-level practice as “real universalism” . . . . .   | 59 |
| Conclusions . . . . .  | 60 |
| References . . . . .   | 63 |
| 3. Institutions and Trust: The Rise and Fall of Trust in Public Elderly Care . . . . .                | 68 |
| Heidi Haukelien   |    |
| Introduction . . . . .   | 68 |
| Elderly care . . . . .   | 71 |
| What are the mechanisms creating trust in a modern welfare state? . . . . .                                      | 74 |
| Scandinavian institutions in the making: Trust as an emergent property . . . . .                                 | 77 |
| Transforming institutions—elderly care . . . . .   | 80 |

|   |            |
|---|------------|
| What happens when trust is undermined? .....  | 83         |
| The significance of institutions .....  | 84         |
| Trust reforms .....   | 86         |
| Conclusions .....   | 88         |
| Acknowledgments .....   | 89         |
| References .....  | 89         |
| 4. Responsibilization of Actors in Care and Other Welfare Services:  |            |
| A Focus on For-Profits in Norwegian Nursing Homes .....  | 93  |
| Frode F. Jacobsen  |            |
| Introduction .....  | 93         |
| Responsibilization and the supervisory environment in welfare services...   | 95         |
| Who are the for-profits? .....  | 98         |
| The position of for-profits in the nursing homes sector .....   | 100        |
| Hidden costs related to the privatization of care and other welfare services .....  | 102        |
| What kind of organizations are the municipalities? .....  | 103        |
| Means of responsabilization and control .....   | 105        |
| The role of mass media and unions in processes of responsabilization .....  | 106        |
| Responsibilization as a dynamic relationship between for-profits and larger society .....   | 107        |
| Conclusions .....   | 108        |
| References .....  | 109        |
| 5. The Rise of Semiprivate Elderly Care in a Supposedly Universal Welfare State: A Critical Investigation of a Public Inquiry on the Swedish RUT Deduction ..... | 112 |
| John Lapidus   |            |
| Introduction .....  | 112        |
| Theory and background .....   | 114        |
| Material and methods .....  | 117        |
| The RUT deduction and its built-in inequality mechanisms .....  | 118        |
| The RUT deduction and the overlap and erosion aspects .....   | 124        |
| Conclusions .....   | 128        |
| Acknowledgments .....   | 131        |
| References .....  | 131        |
| Part II Recognizing, (re)framing, and (re)imagining care   |            |
| 6. A History of Invisibility: The Case of Long-Term Care in Norway .....   | 137 |
| Karen Christensen and Kari Wærness   |            |
| Introduction .....  | 137        |
| Theoretical framework—on care, gender, and recognition .....  | 139        |
| A historical sociological analysis: Empirical cases and methods .....   | 144        |

|   |            |
|---|------------|
| Early invisibility—the state’s lack of recognizing older people’s care needs . . . . .  | 145        |
| Halfway invisibility—recognizing and lack of recognizing women’s care work, between public and private, paid and unpaid work. . . . .                         | 148        |
| Late invisibility—individualizing and emotionalizing the recognition of front-line care work . . . . .  | 150        |
| Conclusions . . . . .   | 154        |
| Acknowledgments . . . . .   | 156        |
| References . . . . .  | 156        |
| 7. Care and Recognition in the Swedish Home Care Market . . . . .  | 160 |
| Elin Peterson and Helene Brodin  |            |
| Introduction . . . . .  | 160        |
| Universal home care services, retrenchment, and care markets . . . . .  | 161        |
| Care work and care entrepreneurship in Swedish home care . . . . .  | 162        |
| Struggles about care and recognition in the Nordic context . . . . .  | 164        |
| An interview study with key informants . . . . .  | 165        |
| Findings: Struggles about care . . . . .  | 166        |
| Conclusions: Implications for recognition. . . . .  | 176        |
| Funding. . . . .  | 177        |
| Acknowledgment. . . . .   | 177        |
| References. . . . .   | 177        |
| 8. The Glamour and Grammar of Innovation: Notes on the Spectacular Reimagination of Municipal Care in Norway . . . . .                                 | 181 |
| Roar Hansen, Anette Fagertun, and Heidi Haukelien  |            |
| Introduction: New ways of thinking? . . . . .   | 181        |
| Making sense of policy: Methodological and theoretical framework . . . . .  | 183        |
| The birth of innovation in care . . . . .   | 187        |
| Reassembling care . . . . .   | 191        |
| What’s the point of innovation? Ideas in motion . . . . .   | 196        |
| The spectacle of the Nordic welfare state—notes on a “high level of gravity state” . . . . .  | 199        |
| Conclusions: A roadmap to an enchanted future? . . . . .  | 202        |
| Acknowledgments . . . . .   | 204        |
| References. . . . .   | 204        |
| 9. Caught in Wicked System-Produced Problems: The Case of Informal Carers in Service Provision for People with Addictions and Mental Illness . . . . . | 210 |
| Guro Huby  |            |
| Introduction: Caught in wicked problems? Informal carers of people with dual diagnosis drug addictions and mental illness . . . . .                           | 210        |

|  |            |
|--|------------|
| The material: Miscommunications in the care of people with dual diagnosis. . . . .                             | 212        |
| Introducing a theory of systems: Divisions and contradictions in care arrangements . . . . .                   | 214        |
| Users’ rights to privacy protection and consent . . . . .  | 215        |
| Meeting places: Systems for managing individuals’ complex problems. . . . .                                    | 217        |
| Managing dual diagnosis: Psychiatric care and addictions management . . . . .                                  | 218        |
| Coordination between specialist healthcare and municipal primary health and social care . . . . .              | 219        |
| A wicked systems dilemma . . . . .   | 221        |
| System reforms or a blind alley? . . . . .   | 223        |
| Conclusions: A way out of the impasse? Agency and spaces for co-creation . . . . .                             | 224        |
| Acknowledgments . . . . .  | 226        |
| References . . . . .   | 226        |
| 10. Conceptualizing Needs When Allocating Public Long-Term Care Services in the Welfare State . . . . . | 231 |
| Oddvar Førland  |            |
| Introduction . . . . .   | 231        |
| Long-term care services and their gateway . . . . .  | 233        |
| The phenomenon of need. . . . .  | 236        |
| Intellectual roots for allocating benefits according to needs . . . . .  | 239        |
| Needs and principles for prioritization and distribution . . . . .   | 240        |
| The struggle over legitimate care needs . . . . .  | 242        |
| Investment in potentiality and its consequences. . . . .   | 243        |
| Conclusions . . . . .  | 245        |
| References . . . . .   | 247        |
| 11. Epilogue . . . . .  | 252 |
| Halvard Vike, Heidi Haukelien, and Anette Fagertun  |            |
| How and why institutions change: Imagining, governing, and “taming” care. . . . .                              | 253        |
| Encompassment, “commoning,” and enclosure of the commons. . . . .  | 255        |
| Struggles of power, solidarity, and social reproduction . . . . .  | 257        |
| The political economy of care—the construction of “needs” and their “solutions” . . . . .                      | 259        |
| References . . . . .   | 261        |
| Authors . . . . .   | 263 |