Contents

Foreword 11

1. Introduction 13

2. Understanding Controversy in the Social Sciences 17
- Controversy in Sociology and the State of Miscommunication 17
- Towards a Framework for the Study of Scientific Controversy in Social Sciences 23
  - Contributions from the Science Studies 23
  - Contributions from Sociological Theory 26
  - Summary of the Contributions from the Science Studies and Sociological Theory 29
  - Casing as a Key Concept in the Framework 30

3. Analysis of the Case of "Norwegian Egalitarianism" 33
- The Case of Cognition in Context 33
  - Subcultural Forms of Egalitarianism in the Community of Researchers 35
- The Construction of Divergence as a "Puzzle" 37
- The Emerging Puzzle 40
  - Solving Puzzles through Easy Interpretations 42
  - Preliminary Paradigmatic Observations 44

4. A Case of Historical Comparative Sociology 47
- Perspective 47
- Methods 47
- Theory 49
- Sampling 52
- Findings 55

5. The Forgotten Epistemology of Application 57
- Elements of a Bourdieu-Inspired Project 58

6. Norwegian Sociologists and "Egalitarianism" as a Case of Situationalism 61
- Casing as an Emergent Process 61

7. Theoretical Divergencies 65
Contested Theory 65
Crucial, Conceptual Confusion 66

8. Conclusions 71

References 79

About the Authors 87